Appomattox County Library

By Mary Jane Hoffman

Annie Laurie Babcock has given a reference book titled Norman Rockwell Artist and Illustrator to the Library in memory of Miss Dawn Rosser. The text is written by Thomas S. Buechner, Director of the Brooklyn Museum, New York, who also had the enormous task of collecting these paintings. Many were lost or destroyed by a fire.

Norman Rockwell is best known for his Saturday Evening Post covers but as we read and look at the pictures, many in color, we find that he illustrated magazines such as St. Nicholas, Boy's Life, Literary Digest, Colliers and Country Gentleman, book illustrations, commercial advertising and posters as well.

Norman Rockwell was born in 1894 and at the age of 16 received his first commission to design four Christmas cards for Mrs. Arnold Constable and was a full professional at the age of eighteen. His first cover for Saturday Evening Post was done when he was only twenty-two.

Mr. Buechner describes his techniques and characterizes him as a brilliant craftsman.

Leafing through this book helps us recall Rockwell's familiar pictures as they depict the daily living of Americans throughout the past fifty years. Do you recall how eager we were to read the 5c Post when it arrived in the mail or on the newsstand?

In 1963 at the age of sixty-nine Rockwell went to work at Look Magazine and here we find a change in depth of perception and a social conscience which is recording history in the making.

This book is for reference only because of its size and does not circulate outside the Library. If you take time out to stop in and look at this book you will chuckle and smile at what you see and come away with some things to think about as well.

Write the title of your favorite picture on a slip of paper and drop in the box alongside. It will be interesting to find out if your favorite is also someone else's.

Sun Tanning Rules Listed

The summer swimming and outdoors season is back again, and with it comes the hazard of sunburn.

The American Medical Association points out that there is virtually no beneficial value to suntanning, and there is real possibility of harm. Heavy tanning brings premature wrinkling and aging of the skin, and also can cause skin cancers.

If you insist on tanning despite the doctor's advice, apply a little common sense and care on the first few days in the sun, and you can avoid a severe burn.

Here are some simple tips for enjoying sunshine and tanning without the painful burns —

- Take it easy the first few days. Tan slowly. Start with 15 minutes the first day and increase the time by 10 minutes each day. The sun is hottest during the midday hours.
- Suntan lotions and creams can screen out some of the burning ultraviolet rays and thus reduce burn. They can't speed up tanning.
- Protect your hair. Too much sun can make it brittle and hard to manage.
- Lubricate the skin with cream or lotion after a day in the sun to help offset the excessive drying effect.
- Protect your eyes with dark glasses or with gauze pads.

Follow these precautions and avoid spending most of the holiday suffering from sunburn.

CANCER Answer-line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A bookseller writes: "I am a divorced man who had a colostomy six months ago. I am very worried about dating because I am afraid that no woman will accept my condition and sex will be impossible."

ANSWERline: People who have had a colostomy (surgery by which a new opening is made in the abdomen for the elimination of body waste) can also have sexually active and satisfying lives. If you accept yourself, your partner will accept you and she may only need some education about your condition. You may find that your own concerns will be eased by talking to another man who has had a colostomy. Your local American Cancer Society Unit may be able to introduce you to one. Also, you may want to read "Sex and the Male Ostomate" available for seventy-five cents from the United Ostomy Association, Inc., 1111 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, California 90017.

A college student asks: "Is cigarette smoking addictive?"

ANSWERline: The Royal College of Physicians in Great Britain, explained it this way in its latest report aptly titled, "Smoking OR Health." Tobacco smoking is "a form of drug dependence different from, but less wrong than that of any other addictive drug." Smoking is seldom a "take it or leave it" activity practiced in moderation on a special occasion. Even stable and well-adjusted people who smoke become dependent on cigarettes. Don't allow the concept of "addiction" scare you because cigarette "addiction" is one that most certainly can be broken. The American Cancer Society estimates that 30 million Americans have quit cigarettes.

A travel agent explains: "Last week my sister was hospitalized to have a suspicious breast lump biopsied for cancer. We were all frantic. However, it turned out to be a harmless lump. Is this rare good luck?"

ANSWERline: Absolutely not. Most breast lumps are not cancerous. In fact, eight out of every ten breast lumps are benign, which means that they are harmless. It is important to have breast cancer diagnosed and treated early when it is most curable. Your sister was lucky that she paid attention to suspicious changes in her breast and had prompt attention. She underwent a biopsy because the only way to diagnose breast cancer definitely is by the removal of a small piece of tissue for examination under a microscope by a physician trained to recognize cancer cells. Most breast lumps are harmless, but every breast lump must be evaluated because of the possibility of cancer.
